Dynoed over 300HP and almost 200 ft-lbs

We actually had some difficulty getting it to ONLY make 230hp.

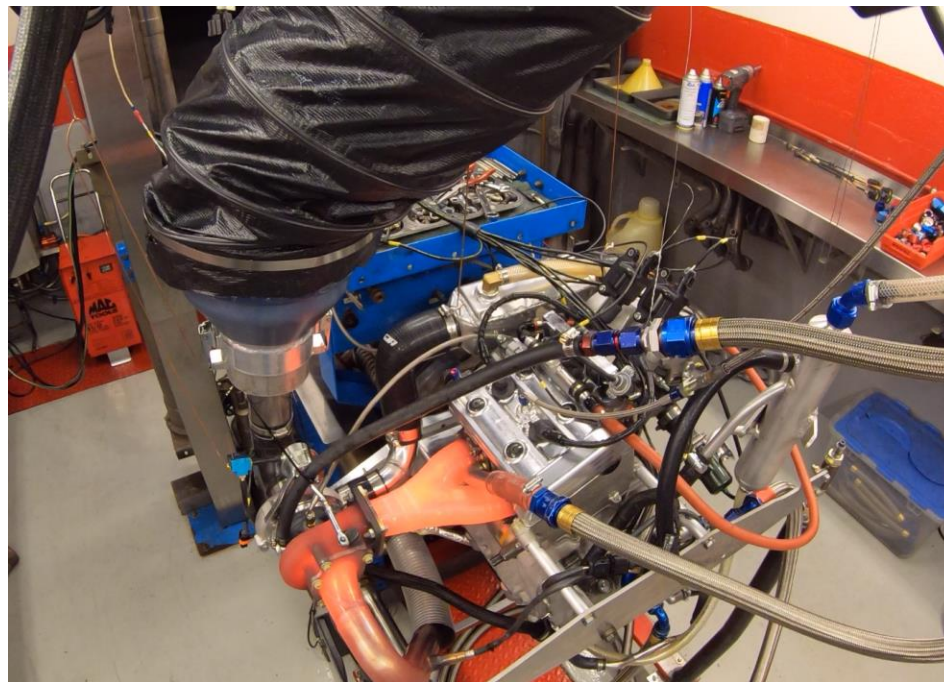

But it held 230Hp and 138 ft-lbs consistently after tuning and exhaust control adjustments

Multiple Endurance runs:

Full throttle for 2 minutes at 225HP

All temperatures stayed in check

CO2 Jack

Note: Production model will have a black body

Lightweight performance sand tires
and rims now available

Craig Shewmake

Newbie here and I eventually plan on getting some wheels & tires for the dunes. I assume when you say "buffed" its something like a smooth tire you see on dragsters? What's the benefit in the dunes? Lighter weight? Wouldn't they tend to slip sideways vs. the fronts you see with the little ridges?

I am buying the El Jefe. Wouldn't it be beneficial to have some front tires with more traction in 4wd to compensate for the additional weight?

Again, total newbie, just doing my due diligence before purchasing things I will later regret.

I truly appreciate all of you on here that pass along your knowledge and wisdom.
